- cultivating and stewarding major/planned/principal donors
- adding philanthropic strategies to donors' and clients' estate and retirement plans
- integrating deferred and major current gifts
- advising business owners on structures and succession plans that involve charitable gifts
- structuring principal gifts
- developing creative endowments
- making contingency plans for all tax scenarios
- applying best practices to the administration and investment of planned gifts
- designing performance metrics for gift planners
- and much more

Attendees at the 2011 National Conference on Philanthropic Planning said...

- Great conference...great return on time and cost investment!
- This is a very well-run conference, and it provides a healthy balance of programs and speakers to cover a myriad of practical issues. It is a wonderful "Homecoming" for gift planning officers and consultants!
- Wonderful first conference. I liked everything being in one place, I liked meeting the people and the vendors. I liked the fact that the 'experts' were approachable and open to speaking with us newbies. I can't wait for next year!
- I always look forward to this conference and leave with several new ideas and valuable knowledge I can apply in my work for the benefit of donors and my institution.
- I appreciated the Conference's continual focus on the donor's charitable intent. Attendees, presenters, and exhibitors all demonstrated a high caliber of professionalism.
